

Aviary Announcement - Sprint 21

Dear User,

Here is a list of the latest changes we implemented in Aviary during Sprint 21. These will be available on the site as of February 26, 2019.

New Features

- New service plan "pay-as-you-go" available.
- Possibility to add global access restrictions for all resources at the collection level.

Enhancements

- Added feature to customize look and feel of text in Collection and Organization pages.
- Added feature to allow customization of look and feel of Collection metadata.
- Enhanced security for organization back-end access and files stored in Wasabi.
- Support for custom text for access request emails.
- Ability to approve access requests automatically.
- Ability to set a notice and "click-through" to allow access to a resource or collection.
- Ability to assign status for each resource, media, transcript, and index during bulk import of OHMS XML files.
- Ability to change media, index and transcript access status in bulk edit mode.
- Maintain image size when extracting thumbnail from uploaded video.
- Ability to set Collection to private or public with inherited permissions to resources, media, indexes, and transcripts.
- Implemented display of original aspect ratio of thumbnails in Aviary media player.
- Adjusted file size limits for uploads:
 - Current .zip size limit for bulk imports is 50GB.
 - Current single media file size limit is 15GB.

Fixes

- Add scroll bar to “access condition text box” in pop-up.
- Added support for Chrome Version 72.0.3626.109 (Official Build) (64-bit)
- Fixed thumbnail extraction from Vimeo, and thumbnail upload for audio files.
- Fixed issues with Access Request text display.
- Fixed issues with Bulk Import functionality for Windows users.
- Fixed issue with Avalon embed code for audio content.
- Fixed issue with results navigation on the Resource Detail page.

Join the conversation!

Share your experience with other Aviary users in the Aviary Google group: <https://groups.google.com/forum/?hl=en#!forum/aviary-users>

Your feedback is valuable to us! Feel free to submit your questions, concerns, or requests at any time.

Contact Us

The Aviary Team.

